2021 Fall Impact Study
Buyer Perspectives on 2022 Media Planning & Budgeting

October 2021
This is the second of two studies conducted by IAB in 2021 to provide the ad-supported internet ecosystem with insights into buyer investments and trends needed for strategic planning. The first study (conducted Mar. 2021) provided a baseline for ad spend in 2021 by channel. The following Fall Impact report provides insight into whether ad investments, planning, strategies, and tactics are shifting for 2022.

Both surveys were completed by those with line of sight into budgets, strategies, placements, and campaign KPIs. Company types queried include the following: Agencies, Brands, Consultancies, Marcom, Ad Tech, Data Providers, and Platforms.

The results are offered to help both the buy- and sell-sides:
- Plan for the year ahead
- Benchmark your brand or channel’s positioning/weight in the marketplace
- Identify white space, best channels and brainstorm big ideas for launching new products/services, finding new targets, and growing ROI
- Evaluate your company’s DEI standing and plans

Study Objectives:

The IAB Fall Impact study offers buy-side trends and insights, with its primary focus on the following areas:

Estimated growth of ad spend in 2022

- Is digital ad spend still in growth mode?
- Is the digital share by channel shifting for 2022? Where are buyers placing their bets?
- What will the frequency of budgeting/reallocating ad spend be in 2022? What can that mean for sellers?

Understanding 2022 Investment in DEI

- Can we expect to see our industry’s DEI strategies reflected in 2022 advertising spend?
Executive Summary

Key Research Findings: Ad Spend

- Of greatest importance to buyers in 2022:
  - First-party data acquisition and partnerships
  - Measurement
- 2022 media ad budgets are expected to increase 13% y/y*
- Share shift to Digital continues, with Traditional budgets projected to lose another 6% in 2022—predominantly from Linear TV*
- The buy-side has shared that the positive shift to Digital will be distributed across its channels fairly evenly—and while Digital Video holds the greatest percent share of the total media budget, it does not show a year-on-year growth. These results are counter to IAB expectations and should be used directionally.
- Budget allocation/reallocation will be examined with greater frequency than has been occurring historically

Key Research Findings: DEI

- Half of buyers say their 2022 budgets include greater investment with minority audiences—BIPOC and LatinX getting get the lions share of that increase
- The ad industry is exploring ways to correct for racial imbalance in staffing

I. Estimated 2022 Spend

Expect a double-digit y/y increase for total media ad spend
The total US budget for advertising spend in 2022 is expected to increase by 13% over 2021, according to media buyers and brands.
Buyers are incrementally shifting toward more frequent budget monitoring.

IAB Perspective: The shift away from annual/biannual budget practices indicates that buyers are settling into a more aggressive review of expenditures throughout the year. IAB expects this trend to continue.

IAB Perspective:

Buyers estimate the 6% share shift to Digital advertising will be distributed across Digital channels.

Note: the decline of Linear TV inventory has contributed to advertiser migration to CTV. IAB expects CTV ad spend growth to continue.
54% of buyers say “precision and effectiveness” is a top goal in 2022

IAB Perspective: Ensuring precise ad targeting underscores the measurement need brands and buyers have been calling for: new methodology, transparency, and easy attribution for determining ROI and evolving strategy.
